VOL. XXI.—NO. 6282 | PORTLAND, OREGON: SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1881. | PRICE—TEN CENTS

THE EASTERN STATES.

No Change in the New York Senatorial Fight.

NO CONCENTRATION OF ADMINISTRATION VOTES.

Grant Actively Interested in favor of Conkling—Beecher gets a focus on Conkling—The Readjusters Convention, etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ALBANY, June 3.—First ballot for successor to Conkling: Jacobs, 53; Conkling, 34; Wheeler, 16; Cornell, 20; Rogers, 14; Bradley, 1; Folger, Crowley and Fenton, 2; Lapham, 6; Woodin and Henry Ward Beecher, 1; Dutcher, 1. Madden voted for Woodin, and Gorslin for Henry Ward Beecher. Beech is paired with Hoffman of Chemung. Lewis paired with Pitney and Crosper with Butler.

No choice, and the convention proceeded to vote for a successor to Platt with the following result: Kernan 53; Platt, 39; DePew, 30; Lapham, 2; Cornell, 14; Ward, 2; VanCott, 2; Trowley, 3; Dutcher, 1; Miller, 8; Folger, 3; Tremaine, 3; Wheeler, 1.

Spinola moved to adjourn joint convention until noon Saturday; agreed to, democrats and Garfield men voting together.

The Situation.

NEW YORK, June 3.—There is no sign of a political conference to-night at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and ex-Senator Conkling kept to his room the whole evening. Ex-Senator Platt was with him a greater part of the time. Vice President Arthur is expected in town to-morrow evening. Ex-Senator Platt proposes to return to Albany Sunday evening. It is stated to-night by those who profess to know, that there will be a conference held here. Conkling's friends assure him that his prospects are very bright and that there is no sign of a breakdown among stalwarts.

Grant Talks.

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Gen. Grant is greatly irritated over the Conkling affair and eagerly reads all dispatches. He says that Conkling has been shamefully treated and should be re-elected to the senate. He thinks that newspaper abuse of Conkling is instigated by White House influences, but not by Garfield. He reaffirms his letter to Senator Jones of Nevada, but will take no hand in the fight. He pronounced Gov. Young's statement of his connection with the U. S. National bank and the Marine bank as false, and says that there is no truth in the story about lost jewelry. His mission to Mexico was also highly successful. He got the concessions wanted, the only opposition being from rival subsidized railroads. Gen. Grant will go to St. Louis, Galena and Chicago after leaving here.

Railroad Purchase in Nevada.

NEW YORK, June 3.—"Mr. Sidney Dillon, and it is supposed Mr. Gould," said a banker to-day, "have bought the Central railroad of Nevada, extending from Battle Mountain on the Central Pacific to Austin one hundred miles down the valley. The object of the purchase is a mystery to the Central Pacific people. One theory is that the road is to be extended north to connect with the Oregon system, and perhaps south to some other connection. A railroad could be built down the valley for a hundred miles if not through to the Texas Pacific. Even if there is no immediate object in view, right of way through the valley is likely to be useful in the future."

Through Mails.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Co. has consented to make such changes in the sailing hours of steamers leaving San Francisco for Australia and China as will secure dispatch of mails from New York arriving at San Francisco on their sailing days.

The president of the Pacific Mail steamship Company, said to-day: "I have just received a telegram asking if there was any truth in a report that the company would get only $30,000 of the $251,000 awarded us by the court of claims. I know of no reason why we shall not get the whole of it. The money was earned by carrying mails in vessels of the company and, if any other company is entitled to it I do not know it. Our statement has been out only a week, yet there are all sorts of false reports. One is that we have taken back payment made to the Panama Company. We could not do it and as a matter of fact we have paid every dollar of the principal or interest due the Panama Company."

Resignation of Fred Grant.

General Sheridan announcing the resignation of Lieut. Col. Fred Grant, June 1st, thanked him for good soldierly qualities during eight years, and earnestly wished him every success.

The Usual Thing.

DALLAS, June 3.—Melton and Baker, notorious burglars and horsethieves, killed a Hayes county deputy sheriff while resisting arrest to-day.

Greenback Nominations for Iowa.

MARSHALLTOWN, June 3.—The greenbackers to-day nominated a full state ticket, headed by D. M. Clark for governor and ending with Mrs. Mary E. Nash for superintendent of public instruction.

Disaster.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., June 3.—The tugboat Jake Brady was blown up off here this morning. All hands lost.

The Readjusters.

RICHMOND, June 3.—Platform of the readjusters:

1. Support state institutions.
2. Support the Riddleberger bill as just.
3. Equal and uniform taxation, internal improvement.
4. Promote development of mines, farms, etc.
5. Free ballot in every state. No capitulation tax, it being a violation of the 14th amendment.
6. Fraternity with other states and immigration.

Killed by Lightning.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Yesterday afternoon a thunderbolt killed Henry Wieman, his wife and a horse. They were driving home near Des Plaines under the shelter of an umbrella. When found both were sitting upright in the buggy. Mrs. Wieman's dress had taken fire and burned nearly off. No marks were discovered.

Another Faster.

Griscom's fast continues. He felt hungry for the first time this morning, it being his 6th day. This afternoon he was weighed and found to have lost 17½ pounds. He had an attack of dizziness, his pulse appeared to have lost some of its force and a general change for the worse was evident in him.

Poor Seed.

DES MOINES, June 3.—Losses to Iowa farmers this year from poor seed will amount to $2,000,000.

Killed by Dynamite.

LOWMOOR, Va., June 3.—An explosion of dynamite here, killed four negroes.

Railroad Conference.

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—Jay Gould and party are conferring with the managers of the Texas Pacific, Missouri Pacific, International and Great Northern and Iron Mountain. It is supposed that consolidation of Gould's entire southwestern interests is under consideration.

Murder and Suicide.

MONTICELLO, Iowa, June 3.—James Hogan Wednesday night shot his divorced wife six times, inflicting injuries which are likely to prove fatal, and then with one shot killed himself. She had obtained a divorce because he was a bigamist and he had threatened to kill her because she refused to marry him.

Reception to Kirkwood.

IOWA CITY, June 3.—Secretary Kirkwood was tendered a public reception this evening in his home by his old friends and the people of this part of the state. A large crowd was present and there was much enthusiasm.

Col. Scott's Will.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The will of the late Thos. A. Scott, admitted to probate, contains minute provisions for his family and relatives, but no public bequests. Col. Scott made gifts to institutions shortly before his death. The will provides that no inventory or account of the estate shall be filed in any public office.

Arrested.

GALVESTON, June 3.—A Coleman special says: A man supposed to be Lee Nelson, who murdered Jas. Barnes, at Minola, was arrested today. He claims to be a business man from California.

Hanged.

CHARLESTOWN, S. C., June 3.—Ben James, colored, was hanged to-day for the murder of David Merriweather at Howell, August last.

A Madman's Crime.

CRESTLINE, N. J., June 3.—Elijah Sterling, claiming to be the son of God, attacked his wife and son with an ax. The son escaped, but the wife was fatally hurt.

Grant's Railroad.

HOUSTON, June 3.—The organization of the Texas Western narrow gauge railway was perfected to-day and formally transferred to the new management. The stockholders elected the following officers: President, U. S. Grant; secretary, J. B. Tracy; executive committee, U. S. Grant, H. Victor Newcomb, Josiah Reiff; directors, U. S. Grant, H. Victor Newcomb, John Bailey, Col. Fred. Grant, Josiah Reiff, A. M. Gentry, W. S. Cleveland, L. K. McIlheny, J. G. Tracy. Active operations will begin at once at construction of the road to the Rio Grande.

New Musical Society.

CHICAGO, June 3.—A musical festival association has been formed to give biennial concert festivals. Solid men are backing it. Theodore Thomas is director.

Fatal Accident.

JERSEY CITY, June 3.—Colonel Dwight Webb fell down stairs in his boarding house and was killed. He will be buried in the potter's field unless relatives prevent. He has been twice congressman from Michigan.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Star Route Prosecutions.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The cabinet considered the star route frauds to-day. MacVeagh did not believe that any of these cases could be tried before September term on account of the crowded condition of the courts.

Treasury Department Frauds.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Many rumors are afloat about the treasury department relative to the probable outcome of investigations in the custodian's office. It is stated that one of the officials interested informed the investigating committee that persons higher in authority than he were responsible for all done for him. The impression prevails that several removals will be recommended.

Personal.

The U. S. steamer Dispatch left this afternoon for fortress Monroe, having as guests President Garfield and two sons, Secretary Hunt and members of his family and Col. Rockwell and family. They expect to return Monday.

Judicial Appointment.

The president has appointed Addison Brown, of New York, U. S. judge for the southern district of New York, vice Choate resigned.

The Mints.

The director of the mint has authorized coinage of standard silver dollars for the present month as follows: San Francisco, 1,200,000; Philadelphia, 450,000; New Orleans, 600,000.

THE STAR ROUTE FRAUDS.

Progress of the Investigation—Dorsey's whereabouts, etc., etc.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Rumors of additional removals and of fresh disclosures flew thick and fast at the postoffice department to-day, but the investigating committee in room 59 continued to sit with closed doors. No new developments were communicated to the public. Auditor McGrew and Deputy Auditor Lilly were still at their offices this afternoon, but will be relieved to-morrow. Referring to a rumor that the attorney general obtained evidence of such a nature as to compromise McGrew, and that the president's summary demand for his resignation was based upon it, McGrew insists that he has done nothing wrong. He says that he audited accounts of mail contractors on certificates of the second assistant postmaster general. All the evidence thus far obtained for prosecution of the star service swindlers is now in the hands of Special Assistant Attorney General Cook. It is said to be of the most damaging nature, clearly proving a conspiracy and involving upwards of twenty individuals. It is claimed that so far as Dorsey is concerned, evidence has been furnished against him by those with whom he has dealings and with whom he failed to act squarely. Although the ex-senator has secured the originals of letters and telegrams recently published, showing how petitions for expediting routes were made up in the far west, it is believed that the attorney general has certified copies which will be used against him. Acquaintances of Dorsey say that, although he still maintains his flesh, he is dreadfully nervous. It has been announced that the ex-senator has gone to live on his cattle ranch in New Mexico. It is known that he has left this city, but there are many who believe he has not headed for his cattle ranch.

The scandalous article recently published in a New York paper, charging Secretary Blaine with complicity in the star route transactions is said to have been traced to members of the star route league, and there is reason to believe that the attorney-general will expose its authorship as one feature of his forthcoming history of the fraudulent conspiracy. Owing to the fact that the present term of the U. S. court for this district is nearly ended, there is not much probability of these reaching the point of prosecution before August or September, but meanwhile it is the intention of government officials to disclose, from time to time, such additional information as to their nature and magnitude as will not impede the course of justice, and fresh developments may be expected within the next fortnight.

More about the Mail Frauds.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Attorney-General McVeagh has been vigorous and untiring in hunting down the star route ring, and has more evidence than the public is aware. He has searched all the records of the departments connected with the star route contracts, and confidential special agents have been sent secretly to gather testimony on the line of expedited routes. Nothing has been left undone that could unearth evidence of fraud. At first the star route ring talked boldly on the supposition that so long as no member turned state's evidence, they were safe. Boasts were made here in Washington that the investigation would fail. It is apparent now that men who shared in the ring are anxious and uneasy, and it is predicted that some of them will leave the country. Attorney General McVeagh and Postmaster-General James are determined to prosecute the ring, and they have evidence enough to procure indictments against numerous parties. The postmaster-general has copies of Dorsey's correspondence with his agents who procured petitions for star routes. Some original letters and documents throwing light on methods employed in Arkansas and the southwest have been obtained, and depositions of some persons who helped prepare the way for expedited routes have been procured.

The Evening Star to-day gives a list of men who will be presented to the grand jury for indictment. Among the list is S. B. Elkins, formerly delegate in the house of representatives from New Mexico. Elkins was intimate with Dorsey when the latter was in the senate a year or two ago and gave out that he made a fortune in mining speculations and he established himself in grand style in New York. Elkins by his influence here got star contracts and had them expedited while Kerns looked after the operation of the lines. Ex-Congressman McKibben is another man mentioned for indictment, also J. B. Price of Missouri. Ex-Auditor McGrew and his late Deputy Lilly will also be presented to the grand jury. McGrew claims that his duty as assistant auditor was only to carry out the directions of the Second Assistant Postmaster General Brady, and that therefore he cannot be held responsible for any wrong, but the sixth auditor is invested with unusual discretionary powers to be used for the protection of the government, but that he did not protect the government as shown by favors granted to star route contractors. Brady is also on the list mentioned to be prosecuted, as is ex-Senator Dorsey and French. Brady's chief clerk, R. C. McDermott, is also mentioned as one of those who may be prosecuted. The trials when they commence will necessitate the summoning of a very large number of witnesses from distant points, especially from the west and southwest.

THE TURF.

The Epsom Meeting.

LONDON, June 3.—The Epsom summer meeting closed to-day. The Oaks stakes was won by Thebais, Lucy Glitters 2d, Myra 3d.

Only the two ran. Ben Dor was ridden by Archer and Robert the Devil by Cannon. There was the greatest excitement concerning the result. Betting a little before the start was 7 to 5 on Robert the Devil, but a few minutes subsequently only 6½ to 4 was offered on him. Ben Dor got away first, but was immediately pulled back. Robert the Devil retained the lead three lengths until six furlongs from the home, when Archer drew up finally winning by a neck.

To Run at Paris.

LONDON, June 3.—Scobell, winner of the Epsom grand prize will contest for the grand Prix de Paris at Paris on the 10th inst. Keene's Foxhall, has declined to 2 to 1 in betting for the Paris event.

MEXICO.

Mexican Affairs.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 3.—Gen. Diaz has resigned the public works portfolio and may go to France, or be elected governor of Oaxaca. Gen. Pacheco replaces him.

THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

Passenger and freight trains on the narrow gauge now run through to Monmouth.

Wheat is quoted at 70 cents per bushel in McMinnville; eggs, 16 cents per dozen and butter 18 cents per pound.

Oats now standing on the farm of Conrad Buckner near Miller's station, Linn county, measure 6 feet 10 inches in height and have heads a foot long.

Commencement exercises of the State Agricultural College were held in Corvallis during the past week. Gov. Thayer delivered the address to the graduating class.

Lucy A., wife of Wm. B. Hamilton, of Corvallis, died at her home in that city on the 31st ult., of pneumonia, after an illness of about a week. She was for many years a resident of that place, and was an estimable woman.

Sheriff Hale of Washington county has been very successful in collecting the taxes, the list of delinquent taxes returned to the court being only $1900 this year against $3250 last, and this amount should be reduced by some $500 in his sale at the time, which he received a day or two too late to account on the list.

George E. Parris, W. Thacker and J. Hugler, the prospectors for quicksilver on the Nestucca have moved an acre and a half of ground 40 feet deep. They have now reached the bedrock and everything bids fair for success. It is understood that Judge Lamson and Robert Booth are the principal owners of the mine.

Strawberries of the "Sharpless" variety of enormous size, are reported in various localities. J. P. Blanchard of Cottonwood exhibits 24 berries that average 2½ ounces each in weight, one of the two dozen measuring 8 inches in circumference; J. R. Townsend of Linn county, shows 24 berries that will fill a quart measure. One of these measures 6 inches one way and 7¼ the other. The flavor is said to be excellent.

The residence of Chris. Newby, of Happy valley, Yamhill county, was robbed of $409 in coin several weeks ago, and following are the circumstances: Mr. Newby had the money in safe keeping for Mr. Noble, a neighbor who recently sold his farm in the hills. Mr. Newby placed the money in the sewing machine drawer. He and his wife were absent a couple of hours, one afternoon, and upon returning, saw that their house had been ransacked. Upon looking for the money they found it gone. No clue to the thief has as yet been discovered.

Washington Territory.

The N. P. land office will be removed from Colfax to Cheney on or about the 15th of June.

The sugar beets on the Puyallup are up and growing finely. The planting has been done earlier than last year.

St. Paul's school, Walla Walla, will close on the 16th inst. Bishop Paddock will deliver the annual address. Two young ladies will receive diplomas from the institution this year.

The commencement exercises of the Territorial University at Seattle were unusually interesting. Governor Newell's address at the close was encouraging and scholarly, and was well received.

Jasper Woolery of Puyallup, last week, while on a trip along the Cascade surveys, killed two black bear and two deer. He has killed 103 bears besides numerous wild cats and cougars, within the past three years, and stands at the head of successful hunters in that region.

Steam was generated for the first time on the six new boilers which were put in the Madison mill on the 1st inst. These boilers will be used to supply steam for a new set of gang saws, which will saw fencing, flooring, etc., and to make any extra steam that may be needed on other machinery.

A bevy of children were telling what they get at school. The eldest got reading, spelling, and definitions. "And what did you get, Bub?" asked the father of a rosy-cheeked little fellow, who at the same time was drawing a tenpenny nail into the door panel. "Me? I gits readin', spellin' and spankin'."

Louis J. Jennings writes from London: "Public writers in the United States have generally dealt rather harshly with Mr. Disraeli, but he always liked Americans as much as he could like anybody but himself. He was one of the few men who deprecated any interference whatever with the struggle of 1861-65."

IT SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE

That a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, &c., should make so many and such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do, but when old and young, rich and poor, Pastor and Doctor, Lawyer and Editor, all testify to having been cured by them, you must believe and try them yourself, and doubt no longer. Several Bodies of Troops Marching Through Ireland.

BITTER HATRED OF THE PEOPLE FOR THE POLICE.

Outrages in Various Localities—Dillon Visited in Prison—He Knows Nothing of what the World is Doing—Etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

LONDON, June 3.—[illegible] that serious fighting riots had occurred at Scariff were unfounded. Shots were exchanged at Scariff, but no one was injured, the constabulary firing over the heads of the assailants. There is no doubt, however, that a bitter feeling exists between the police and the people. Resident magistrates have been cautioned against reading the riot act, except on the gravest occasion, and even when the police receive the word "fire," they are charged to fire at least two blank volleys into the air before firing into the people, and in bayonet charges they have to make use of the butts of their rifles rather than of their swords, unless, of course, their lives are in imminent danger. Similar orders have been issued by Sir Thomas Steele, commander of the forces in Ireland, to general officers commanding various districts. It requires no large stock of bravery, therefore, for a mob to storm the military and police. Peasants know what the orders of the latter are and make good their retreat before the command "with ball cartridge prime and load," are given. Soldiers are rather popular than otherwise with the peasantry, but the police are detested and [illegible] in almost daily collisions in disturbed districts. In Waterford, Tipperary and Limerick peasants have raised the old cry of [illegible]. Many years ago before the constabulary force was organized and when the police were merely [illegible], little better than [illegible], a number of them escorting a process server was attacked at the pass of Carrickshock, in the Comeragh mountains, in County Waterford, and murdered, and the cry became a war cry [illegible]. The inspector general of constabulary has reported to the chief secretary that should this large body of police be let loose upon the people he will not be responsible for the consequences, as the men are eager to avenge indignities heaped upon them and the brutality with which their comrades in the isolated barracks have been treated. Fortunately the riots so far, have been confined to the country districts, but a collision may occur at any moment at Limerick, Tralee and other towns in the south. The best officers in the constabulary have been sent to the disturbed districts, and stipendiary magistrates in all cases, accompany the police, it having been found that the ordinary justice of the peace is unfit, both from his relations with the tenants and his lack of experience.

About 10 o'clock at [illegible] within [illegible] miles of Tulla, the police got off the cars to walk up a steep hill. At the turn of the road an armed party was lying in wait, and immediately opened fire on the police from an adjoining wood. No less than 20 shots were counted in regular file firing order, the bullets whizzing over the heads of the police, fortunately doing no injury. The police briskly returned the fire, but with what effect is not known. About a quarter of a mile further on they were again fired on by another armed party from behind some hedges, and one of the horses in the car on which sat County Inspector Smith, was shot dead. The police made a search through the field and three men were arrested, but they had no arms. The tenant of [illegible] was of the party, also his son and a servant. The others arrested were brought up at petty sessions and remanded. Alarming accounts continue to come in from other parts of the country. Yesterday a force of over 100 soldiers and police had to protect a bailiff who attempted to serve a process for rent on the estate of Capt. [illegible]. A large crowd assembled and stones were thrown at the police. In each case doors were removed from the houses and the entrances blocked up with stones, but these were removed and the processes were posted in conspicuous parts of the tenements. A hundred police and two troopers of the [illegible] left Kilkenny for [illegible] to make seizures for rent. Cars, even those of private gentlemen were forcibly seized for the conveyance of the military. The police were accommodated with ambulances and wagons. Notwithstanding a fine of twenty pounds several car owners placed their horses out of reach, consequently some of the military had to walk 15 miles to the scene of action.

To-night the flying column left [illegible] in a special train at ten o'clock. The column consists of engineers, artillery, infantry and cavalry, in all 800 men. A resident magistrate acquainted with the country, will accompany the expedition, its destination being New Pallas. The resident magistrate received his directions personally from Mr. Forster. The column on its arrival at New Pallas will proceed against the castle, which siege will be resumed and the stronghold stormed if necessary. A report received to-night says that the son of Lord Dunsandle was fired at to-day at Dunsandle, near Loughrea, near the scene of the Dempsey murder, last Sunday. He was wounded but not fatally. The report is hardly believed correct for Lord Dunsandle has no son.

DUBLIN, June 3.—A flying column which left this city last night included [illegible] guardsmen of the Scotch fusileers, with military service wagons, ambulance wagons and army hospital corps. The whole force concentrating for operations at the castle of New Pallas, near Limerick, numbers over a thousand men. A flying column at [illegible] is under orders to be ready at a moment's notice. Troops are everywhere [illegible] from [illegible] to New Pallas.

DUBLIN, June 3.—A soldier riding from the post-office to the barracks in Dublin, was desperately attacked, stabbed and pulled off his horse by a laborer. The latter was eventually secured. He said that as an insurrection had broken out in the country he had begun it here. The soldier's wounds are not dangerous. A party of military was dispatched to Ballinamore, County [illegible], to-day, where rioting was apprehended on account of arrests under the coercion act.

The Commons.

LONDON, June 3.—The commons adjourns over from the 4th to the 10th inst. for the Whitsuntide holidays, and consideration of the land bill in committee will be postponed from to-night until Monday, the 13th inst.

LONDON, June 3.—In the commons during the time of putting the question to the ministers, [illegible] O'Connor was called to order for using the word "mendacious." O'Kelley [illegible] applied the epithets [illegible] to several members of the house and [illegible] the remainder of the sitting was moved by Gladstone and carried, 188 to 11. O'Kelley then withdrew quietly. Parnell gave notice that he would call attention to the circumstances of suspension of O'Kelley on Friday.

On motion of Gladstone to take a recess [illegible] 9th inst., conservative members raised a debate on the state of Ireland.

Harcourt in replying to Northcote [illegible] insufficient and lack of information [illegible] accused Northcote of desiring to embarrass the government by creating alarm and adding to the difficulties of grave circumstances already existing.

Gladstone said that vigorous measures were adopted by the Irish executive yesterday to put down resistance to law, intimating that a castle or a [illegible] New Pallas.

Northcote said that the statement was not reassuring. Forster's absence [illegible].

Gladstone's motion to take a recess until [illegible] was agreed to.

Cornell and the Henley Regatta.

The secretary of the Henley regatta writes to remove a false impression in consequence of erroneous statements in regard to the entry of the Cornell University crew. "I beg to state the actual facts. The first official notice of the intended entry of the Cornell crew was by telegram received May 2[illegible]. A meeting of stewards was convened [illegible] and the decision of the meeting was that the entry could not be received in consequence of not having been made by the first of March. This decision was furnished to Mr. Gillig the same day."

A Cape Colony Loan.

A loan of £2,000,000 issued by the government of Cape Colony, has been covered three times over.

Got another "Sit."

LONDON, June 3.—Prof. Robertson Smith, suspended by the assembly of the Free Church from teaching his classes at Aberdeen University, for certain writings, particularly an article on the Hebrew language and literature, has accepted an offer from Blacks, the publishers of the work in which the objectionable article appeared.

The Missionary Field.

The board of managers of the American Bible Society have divided the field known as China and Japan. Dr. Gulick, who has had charge before, was assigned to China and Rev. Henry Loomis to Japan.

Position Offered.

Earl [illegible] has been offered the governorship of Madras.

Dillon Writes to the Speaker.

Dillon's letter to the speaker of the commons from Kilmainham jail is published. Dillon inquires whether a question of privilege does not arise on his arrest, and says that the chief secretary for Ireland had read an inaccurate report of his (Dillon's) speech. He declares that it did not afford justification for his arrest. The speaker's report says that as Dillon's letter did not relate to any matter of privilege, he had not thought it necessary to lay it before the house.

Arrested.

TRALEE, June 3.—Excitement exists here on account of the arrest, under the coercion act, of [illegible] Harrington, proprietor of the [illegible]. He was chief organizer of the land league. More arrests are expected.

An Important Remedy.

PARIS, June 3.—A French veterinary surgeon has discovered a remedy by inoculation for a sickness called "charbon," which kills a million francs worth of sheep yearly.

The Spanish Cortes.

MADRID, June 3.—It is said that a decree will be issued on the 9th, dissolving the cortes, ordering elections in August and summoning the new cortes to meet in September.

DAVITT IN PRISON.

He is the Prison Governor's Gardener—No Knowledge of the Outside World—On Terms with a Blackbird.

LONDON, June 3.—Mr. Davitt was visited in prison today by Mrs. A. M. Sullivan. She had a long interview with the imprisoned leader of the land league in the presence of the governor of the jail. Mr. Davitt is in good health and spirits. He is not compelled to associate with other prisoners, and by orders from the home department he is treated with exceptional consideration. His work is[?] consists in taking care of the governor's garden—an occupation which evidently agrees with him. He looks hale and sunbrowned. He is kept however, in complete ignorance of all that is passing in the outer world. The news of Mr. Brennan's arrest had evidently not reached him, as he [illegible] quested Mrs. Sullivan to convey to Mr. Brennan some instructions respecting his private affairs. Under the conditions imposed, the visitor was allowed [illegible] was impossible for the visitor to inform him of the arrest of his friend, but the way in which the request was received evidently conveyed to Mr. Davitt a correct idea of the situation. [illegible] asked if Secretary Forster had any [illegible] of the latter [illegible], after expressing his opinion that the chief secretary was [illegible] Mr. Davitt has made up his mind to remain in prison for the four years necessary to complete his original sentence. He says that he will not court any [illegible]. The only luxury permitted by his jailors is [illegible] with a large set of books which he [illegible] for winter reading. Davitt since he has taken charge of the garden has established friendly relations with a blackbird, which nests in one of the trees. The bird [illegible] Davitt daily, and comes at his call, perching fearlessly on his shoulder or finger while pouring forth a flood of song. This companionship is the only solace of Davitt's treatment, as visits are only allowed [illegible] three months. These facts were related by the governor to Mrs. Sullivan and have created considerable sensation at Portland, where Davitt was regarded as a terrible conspirator and the most dangerous of all that were [illegible].

Corr.—Conkling [illegible] back to Washington?

Beecher.—No, he is totally in the wrong, and ought to go down. I have been a great admirer of his abilities, and have stood by him in his support of General Grant, but in this matter he has forfeited any claim to aid and comfort. It will be very hard for him to defeat the Robertson nomination. They have two powerful factors at their command—the administration influence and the [illegible] house appointments. With all these factors in his pocket, Robertson is all-powerful. Moreover, Robertson is a good man, and if he succeeds in this issue he will be more powerful than Conkling has been, and will more than [illegible] to his party. He is a man of character and ability.

Corr.—Conkling is not a corrupt man, is he?

Beecher.—He does not hesitate to employ the machine and the juggling appliances of politics, but he is not personally approachable with money.

Corr.—Conkling is overbearing and dictatorial and unforgiving, is he not?

Beecher.—He is tyrannical and implacable. He never forgets an injury nor forgives an enemy. He never looks with any degree of allowance upon a man whom he thinks has betrayed or wronged him.

Corr.—But is it not treason in his eyes to oppose him in any of his purposes?

Beecher.—It would appear so. He cannot brook opposition.

Corr.—Generally it will stand by him in this pending contest, both? [illegible]

Beecher.—Yes, he is destroying on to New York, but he is making the worst move of his life. He is working against his own best interests.

The Pulpit on the Revision.

[From the New York Herald.]

So fresh and important a topic as the revised edition of the New Testament was not likely to escape pulpit comment yesterday. Preachers are not more apt than other men to make new discoveries, but they are the equals of any set of sinners extant, editors not excepted, in discussing volubly all topics forced upon their attention. Nearly all of the new book was to the main favorable. The failure of the revision to change any important point of doctrine was acknowledged with gratitude in several pulpits, [illegible] [illegible] Universalists were sure that their [illegible] [illegible] possibility of a personal devil. This possibility will not startle New York, however [illegible] to have here a few months, would change his conviction that Satan is a myth.

OUR EXPORTS.

It is certainly gratifying to all true Americans to know that of late years our exports have largely exceeded our imports, not alone in such staple articles as wheat and beef, but in almost every branch of industry. Ten years ago nearly all the perfumery and toilet articles used in this country were imported from Europe; to-day we not only manufacture for ourselves, but are large exporters to South America, China, Japan and the Colonies. The immense growth of this particular industry on the Pacific Coast is simply astonishing. Eleven, who is now one of the largest cologne makers in the world, last year exported some 2,000,000 bottles of his famous Yosemite Cologne. For sale by Woodard, Clarke & Co., Portland, Oregon.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

A Remarkable Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Robert [illegible] of David R. Hartwell, has been missing since May [illegible]. A dispatch was received from Mr. Hartwell's son in South Carolina yesterday, saying that the boy had arrived there. He had been kidnapped by a man and taken to New York. On arrival there the kidnapper had been killed and the boy made his way to his aunt. No further particulars yet received.

Rain in California.

Within the last 24 hours slight showers of rain have been quite general over northern and central parts of the state. Some damage is expected, but [illegible] no injury of consequence to grain is anticipated unless in some places hot weather rains [illegible] follow.

The Kearney Crowd to be Ousted.

The supreme court to-day decided that a city election shall be held in September. News of the decision created much comment on the street, mainly of a favorable nature.

Evangelical Conference.

The [illegible] annual Pacific conference of the Evangelical association opened to-day. The conference was opened by Rev. A. Krecker of Salem, Oregon. Rev. [illegible] of Corvallis, Oregon, was elected presiding elder, and Rev. F. W. Voegelin of San Jose, secretary. In an examination of the moral character of members no charges were preferred. Deacon's orders were voted to Rev. J. S. Beecher of Dayton, Or. Salem was selected for the next meeting of the conference, to be held the first Thursday in June, 1882. Adjourned until morning.

The San Francisco Tonnage Situation.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Owing to the limited amount of disengaged tonnage in port and [illegible] business of [illegible], nothing of interest has transpired since last report. One vessel has arrived, one sailing vessel and several came to hand [illegible]. Two spot charters also have been drawn. Exports during May make [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Crop prospects in this state continue favorable [illegible] [illegible].

Freights quoted [illegible] points and [illegible] of New York vessels for the California fleet are very scarce and command full rates. High rates for forward chartering are also demanded by [illegible] who have vessels loading [illegible] The latest charter reported is the British ship [illegible] [illegible].

Mining in Grass Valley.

GRASS VALLEY, June 3.—Large gravel [illegible] [illegible]. Quartz mining is still being pushed.

Returned to Work.

[illegible], June 3.—Thirty of the white laborers on the railroad who struck yesterday resumed work at the old wages to-day. [illegible] where they were working, for the purpose of driving them, were dispersed by officers.

Out of Work.

MARYSVILLE, June 3.—Employes of the [illegible] Water & Mining Co. were notified that the mines would be closed [illegible] pending of a suit in the case of Marysville vs. the North Bloomfield Mining Co. and others. The foreman and agents were all discharged. Several hundred men are out of work. [illegible] [illegible] the feeling is very bitter against all.

Boy Killed.

WILLIAMS STATION, [illegible], June 3.—This afternoon an eight year old boy named [illegible] was instantly killed by a horse [illegible].

Items from Port Townsend.

PORT TOWNSEND, June 3.—[illegible] Neah Bay and [illegible] yesterday and returned to-day, and [illegible] the post [illegible]. The governor, after visiting the custom house and other places [illegible] the garrison where he was received with the usual salute [illegible].

A large portion of the Chinese who arrived in Victoria recently by the Henry [illegible] are coming over here on the last two steamers and [illegible] all over the sound. There seems to be no way to put notwithstanding the Chinese treaty a trouble as the emigration of Chinese will certainly be taken place by way of British Columbia, unless some steps are taken to prevent it.

THE MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

A correspondent writing from [illegible] county, under date of the [illegible], gives the following:

The search made yesterday by the citizens of Albany, Halsey and Tangent for the owner of the clothing found on Brownsville bridge, with evidences of violence, revealed the fact that a man by the name of Francis was missing from Halsey under circumstances which seem to indicate that he was murdered and robbed at the above named place. The clothing picked up yesterday was identified as the property of Francis and French, as the report was first circulated. The horse he rode the evening of the supposed murder returned home, going through the right road back to the Calapooia river at the bridge, or search of the brush by the anxious and excited people, failed to discover the whereabouts of Francis.

PROBABLY MURDERED.

Body of an Unknown Man Found Floating in the Columbia—Foul play suspected.

Last evening the following dispatch was received from [illegible]:

The body of an unknown man was picked up this afternoon at [illegible] by the steamer Idaho. The body has apparently been in the water for some time. A piece of rope was tied around his neck, and the supposition is that he has been murdered and a stone tied to the body and thrown into the river.

POLITICAL DISCUSSION.

Will the Democrats be Able to make the Republican Quarrel their Opportunity?

[From the New York Herald.]

The democrats are just now in the very comfortable position of the small boys who form a ring about two smaller urchins and shout and applaud at the most successful hits, and then at a critical moment [illegible] knocks the other out of time. It may be a splendid democratic opportunity if only the republicans carry their foolish quarrel far enough to make it disastrous, but there are signs already that the body of the party does not intend to permit disorganization, and will presently command the peace. The rank and file of the party of both factions regret that such a dispute should have occurred, or that having broken out it should have been carried to such extremes. Does any democrat believe that his own party now is well fitted for the great opportunity which may thus arise? The democratic leaders are not, unfortunately, for their party and themselves, agreed upon any question which has the least public interest or importance. Some of them are for destroying the national banking system. Others of equal eminence in the party hold that this is the best currency system ever known, and that it would be both unconstitutional and mischievous to substitute for it greenbacks. Some are strongly protectionists. Others are equally zealous revenue reformers, and hold to a tariff for revenue only. Some are for free ships, others for subsidies to steamer lines to encourage American shipbuilding at a loss. Some are unlimited silver men, others hard money-ists. Some support liberal appropriations for internal improvements, others insist on rigid economy of the people's money. On one point of policy alone the so-called democratic party is agreed, and that, unluckily for it, is the most unpopular they could agree on. They are united to maintain a solid democratic south. Opportunities are of little use to people who cannot grasp them. A party which must go to pieces the moment it looks a bold policy in the face is not in condition to make much out of the most splendid opportunity, and it is perhaps because they know this debility of their opponents that the republican managers venture on the desperate quarrel in which, to the regret of their party, they have engaged.

THE FUTURE OF LANGUAGES.

Owing to various causes, chief of which is the commercial energy of the English-speaking races, it is apparent that the English language has more prospect of becoming as nearly the universal tongue as any other which has existed since the historic period began. It is not improbable that within two hundred years America alone will contain four or five hundred millions of people speaking the English tongue. The language, already more widely diffused than any other, is making rapid conquests in all parts of the globe. More newspapers are published in English than in all other languages together, and there are few parts of the world where such newspapers are not found. If more books are not already being printed in English than in all other tongues, it probably will not be long till such is actually the case. The intellectual energy of the English-speaking races has been equal in all times to their extraordinary commercial enterprise, and both these qualities together, backed by an active courage which has been equal to every emergency, have carried the language to all quarters of the globe. Missionary work also has done and is still doing its part, and its part is no small one. Love of adventure and discovery still pushes the language as for centuries past, into remote and obscure corners of the earth, and wherever the language plants itself, it comes to stay, backed as it invariably is by a purposeful activity and intellectual power which cover the whole range of human effort in progressive civilization.

The only language which may compare with the English in extent of diffusion is the Spanish, the use of which is dispersed very widely over the globe. It holds its ground from the era of Spanish conquest three centuries ago, but has long since ceased to make further advances. Time was when it gave more promise of becoming the universal language than any other that ever existed. Many think its promise was even better, far better, than that of the English is now. Spain then led in every enterprise. The world trembled at her power. Her discoveries and conquests were bounded only by the limits of the globe itself. On land and sea her power was undisputed. Europe was at the feet of Charles the Fifth, king of Spain and emperor of Germany. The ocean itself bore the significant designation of "The Spanish Main." The East and West Indies owned the sway of the mighty power, and large part of America fell under the same domination. Ticknor, in his "History of Spanish Literature," says: "From the time of Charles the Fifth and as a natural result of his conquests and influence throughout Europe, the Spanish language became known and admired abroad as it had never been before. The marriage of Philip the Second to Mary Tudor carried the Spanish to the English coast, where for a time it had been in some vogue and Charles himself as emperor spread it through Germany, as he did in other ways and by similar influences through Flanders and Italy." But Spain lost her great opportunity. Ruled by narrow bigots under ecclesiastical influence, who repressed freedom of conscience, stifled intellectual liberty and wasted the treasure and blood of a mighty kingdom in the vain endeavor to fasten the chains of political and priestly despotism, which her own people had accepted, upon the rest of mankind, Spain fell behind in the march of nations, though the wide diffusion of the Spanish language over the earth remains to attest the greatness of her former energies and the vast extent of her conquests.

Prof. Max Muller, the noted philologist, in a recent article on the spelling of words, advocates as the first step in the right direction the retention of but four of the languages now spoken and written in Europe. Of these he places the English first, the French second, the German third, and for the fourth he hesitates between the Italian and Spanish. Judging by the number of those who use a language, the Spanish would be entitled to position over the Italian, because it is used by many more people, including twenty or thirty millions in America, whose numbers will undoubtedly increase immensely within a century or two more. The languages of Germany, France and Italy will not be able to make such progress, because the number of people which those countries will hold is limited, and their languages are not extensively planted in other quarters of the globe. The English and Spanish alone have very wide diffusion; but the former is aggressive, and is likely to make great encroachments on the latter, as it has done on the French in Canada, on the Dutch at the Cape, and on other languages in many parts of the world. For example, it is easy to foresee the consequences of changes now taking place in Mexico. All educated and active business men in that country will soon speak and write English. It will be taught in all the public schools of that country, and the use of Spanish will become almost unnecessary after a few generations. Commerce, manufactures, science, the steam engine, the railroad and the telegraph, almost instinctively speak English, and at the same time teach and necessitate its use. Moreover English is the language of liberty, as well as of energy and enterprise and through the forms of free government it will instil the love of a language never used by a servile race. It is argued by a philologist of wide celebrity that two hundred years hence the English will be used by twice as many people as use all other languages combined—reckoning in the calculation only the races now recognized as civilized and possessing national literatures. The estimate seems by no means an extravagant one. Lord Bacon turned his essays from English into Latin for their surer preservation, fearing that "the modern tongues would one day play the bankrupt with books," and expressing the belief that the Latin edition of his essays "would last as long as books last." Were he living now he might change his mind as to whether the English or Latin version would be likely to last the longer.

SUBSIDIZING MAIL STEAMERS.

Mr. Hugh McCulloch, formerly secretary of the treasury, has an article on "Our Future Fiscal Policy" in the North American Review for June, in which he discusses, incidentally, our shipping interests and carrying trade. After speaking of the loss of our commercial prestige, he expresses the opinion, in the most positive manner, that revival and restoration of our foreign shipping interest depends on the granting of subsidies. "We must do," he says, "what has been done by other nations; we must subsidize American steamship lines." Our government, the ex-secretary thinks, ought to pursue the same policy of encouragement towards lines of steamers that it has employed towards railroads. No doubt there are many to whom this seems a conclusive argument; yet a little examination will show that the analogy on which it is founded is a forced one. In aiding the construction of railroads government assists enterprises that add to the permanent wealth of the country. Besides, the government has only given lands except in two or three cases which have not been followed as precedents [illegible] the construction of railroads. It has not given money subsidies raised by taxation as it would do should it subsidize steamship lines. And the lands given have been so remotely situated as for the most part to be nearly valueless without the railroads. Again, a railroad once built stays forever, at least the most expensive portions; but there is nothing about a steamship line that may not be [illegible] up or sold out and moved to a foreign or hostile country in a day. Railroads moreover add value to all the adjacent lands, encourage their settlement and cultivation, producing indirect benefits that many times exceed the subsidies granted. We can add no value to the waste of the ocean by any number of steamship lines. Before we try any other experiment we ought to remove unnecessary restrictions to the building or purchase of ships for our foreign trade. It would seem to be no easy undertaking to show why we should tax all other branches of industry and enterprise to pay the millions on millions which the advocates of the policy of ocean subsidies assert would be necessary to make profits for American ship owners. If government would establish the policy of free trade in ships it might be a step towards solution of this problem; though Prof. Sumner of Yale and other authorities say it would be impossible to determine in advance just what would be the consequence of repealing the navigation laws. Our tariff has introduced such an artificial condition of things that the buying of ships might not at the outset be profitable, even if it were permitted. But the professor believes that the restrictions should be removed, so that the trial can be fairly made. If Americans should then find it profitable to go into the carrying trade they would do so; otherwise they would not. Prof. Sumner, David A. Wells and Capt. Codman do not agree as to what would be the consequences of abolishing the navigation laws, but they are all convinced that America can never compete with England in the building of steel and iron ships until it can manufacture iron and steel as cheaply as England. When that time comes there will be no necessity for a tariff protection against foreign iron and steel, and likewise no necessity for subsidies. A sound policy will, if adopted and resolutely pursued, bring to us the supremacy of the seas without trouble or cost. But we shall not gain this position by a policy which keeps everything on an artificial, inflated and expensive basis, under the so-called protective system.

TEMPERANCE FROM A SCIENTIFIC STANDPOINT.

Dr. William James has been giving the students of Harvard university some lectures on alcohol, from a scientific standpoint. No one doubts that excessive use of alcoholic beverages is ruinous, but there are a good many conflicting theories as to their effects when employed in strict moderation. It is contended on the one hand that alcohol in all its forms is a poison and a poison only, and on the other that it is nourishing when combined with vegetable acids and other products of fermentation, in light wines, etc. The general conclusion of Dr. James is in favor of total abstinence, though he denies the correctness of some of the views put forth in temperance literature. Thus he explains that the experiments of Anstie and Parke have demonstrated that it is not true that no alcohol is destroyed in the body and that it is all excreted. Only the excess over about one and a half ounce per diem thus passes off. Taken in addition to the usual quantity of food, alcohol increases the weight of the body, and compensates for a diminution of the ordinary amount of food. It does this, however, rather by reducing the demand for food. This effect is not desirable, and alcohol is only the least hurtful alternative for insufficient diet. It increases pulsation, but only temporarily. It dilates the blood vessels, and thus increases warmth in the surface, but meanwhile the temperature of the interior blood has fallen. It is the worst of stimulants for the muscles, coffee coming next. It is chiefly pleasant as an anaesthetic but it excites the imagination while dulling the judgment. Any task requiring more than half an hour for its accomplishment can better be done without alcohol than with it. It should not be taken before or during work but after it if at all. It helps digestion only as a flavor and the same result may be more safely and as effectually obtained by the use of other flavors, especially fruits. There are nations which appear healthy, though constantly using alcohol, yet the statistics of insurance companies show that where 1100 teetotalers ought to have died only 801 did die, while of other people, presumably moderate drinkers, out of 2010 who might be expected to die 1997 actually did so. Dr. James, therefore, thinks it the most judicious course in this overworked age and country of ours for young men of average health to avoid being "handicapped by a beverage, the effects of which are, on the whole, likely to be injurious." He thus reaches the same end as reformers, though without adopting their processes of reasoning.

We have been offered a communication written by a person on the east side of the river, in which Mayor Thompson is attacked in a scurrilous and mendacious manner for his veto of the Pine street ferry ordinance. This paper cannot permit itself to be made the instrument of indecent attack on men either in public or private capacity by persons who would like to conceal their own names. In this case it is assumed that Mayor Thompson vetoed the ordinance because he wants to hold for his own use the foot of Pine street, adjacent to block 81. Now the fact is that the owners of block 81, Messrs. Thompson and Dolph, make no claim whatever to the street, nor do they so much as pretend to have any ground for such claim. The metes and bounds of the block is the extent of their ownership. The principal ground of the veto was that there never has been a street laid out and established over the property where it is proposed to establish this ferry landing. Moreover it is questioned whether the common council has the right under the charter to establish ferry landings. But it is said that Mayor Thompson approved the ordinance for the ferry at Jefferson street. The difference is that Jefferson street is a public thoroughfare to the river, and the foot of any such street may undoubtedly be used for a ferry landing by any person to whom the county court may grant a license. It is questionable whether the Jefferson street ordinance was at all necessary to establish the right to operate the ferry there. The ordinance, however, secured to the city the fire service of the boats landing at the foot of the street, and this was one of the main objects of its enactment. If Pine street were an open thoroughfare to the river, as Jefferson street is, then the person or company to whom the county court might issue a ferry license could operate a ferry there, though the city of course would have power to establish the grade and regulate the improvement of the street. Undoubtedly too the city has the right and power to open Pine street to the river, when a ferry may be established there if the county court shall see fit to grant a license. This whole matter is an extremely simple one, and there is no occasion for getting befogged over it.

THE OREGONIAN has never entertained a doubt that a railroad would be built from Puget sound over the Cascade mountains; but when that work will be consummated is a question of another kind. It will probably be undertaken after the Northern Pacific main line shall have been completed. A paper at Walla Walla wants us to take notice of the fact that Mr. French, railroad commissioner, says that the Cascade branch must be built over the mountains to Tacoma this year if possible, and next year without fail, and that in case of delinquency measures will be taken by the government to compel it. While it is not to be doubted that the Cascade branch will be built as soon as practicable, it may be as well to observe that Mr. French, who is reported as talking in this authoritative way, is not "the government," but only an accounting clerk of a bureau, whose utterances carry about as little authority as those of any one of his ten or twenty thousand fellow clerks in the service of the government.

Though the American committee had less part in the revision of the New Testament than the English, and though a large part of the suggestions of the American scholars were rejected, yet it is apparent from the tone of comment and criticism that the results of the committee's labors are regarded with far less favor in England than in America. The general current of English criticism seems to set heavily against the new version on the ground that even if clearness has in some instances been gained there have been sacrifices of beauty, dignity and simplicity, and that the gain does not compensate for the loss.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1881.

CITY.

RETURNED MISSIONARIES.—Rev. J. F. Walker and wife, who have spent ten years as missionaries in Shanghai, China, have recently returned to this country for a year's rest. They have spent several weeks at Forest Grove, where Mr. Walker was educated, and where his grandmother, herself for years a missionary with her husband among the Indians of Washington territory, still resides. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will spend Sunday in this city, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Shindler. Sunday morning Mr. Walker will deliver an address in the First Congregational church, "Shanghai and the Chinese." In the evening at [illegible] o'clock, Mrs. Walker will address a meeting of ladies only. This will be the only opportunity to hear these returned missionaries, as they are to go east June 10.

LECTURE ON GEORGE ELIOT.—Mrs. Williams, whose afternoon lectures to a large class of ladies upon Lessing, Dante, Hugo and others of the great authors, have been so highly enjoyed and commended, in response to an urgent request, will give a general lecture at the Unitarian chapel on next Tuesday evening. Her subject will be "George Eliot." Mrs. Williams' former lectures, [illegible] profound knowledge and tips, vigorous thought and [illegible] with attractive eloquence, pleased and benefited all who heard them. The coming lecture [illegible] a subject which just now engages special attention from the intellectual world, cannot fail of [illegible] interest.

[illegible] BY ATTACHMENT.—The [illegible] establishment of Mr. Isador Gunzburger, known as the "[illegible] Bible Bazar," has been closed by attachment and is now in the hands of the sheriff. Attachments have been filed in the county clerk's office by the following creditors: Wangenheim & Sternheim for $650.71; Henry Ackerman & Co. for $205; H. Baumgart for $250; Baum & Bro. for $761.01 and interest on $[illegible] at 10 per cent. from February 17, 1881, interest on $[illegible] from March 1, 1881, interest on $[illegible] from May 27, 1881, and for the further sum of $[illegible].

THE THOMPSON MEDALS.—Thursday afternoon of next week competitive examinations for the medals offered by Mayor D. P. Thompson for the best [illegible] in the first and second grades of the grammar department of the several public schools, will take place. The following committee has been chosen to award the prizes: Dr. Geo. H. Atkinson, Judge E. D. Shattuck, Col. John McCraken, Mrs. C. A. Dolph and Mrs. C. L. Henderson. The medals are the workmanship of Stone, are as large as $20 gold pieces and handsomely engraved.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—Thursday evening Unity [illegible] A. O. U. W., held its election for officers for the ensuing term, and chose the following named gentlemen to fill the positions: E. C. Wheeler, M. W.; J. Prager, Foreman; Wm. Church, Overseer; V. K. Strode, Recorder; F. M. Cotter, Financier; Wm. Gallick, Receiver; F. W. Zeigler, Guide; A. J. Pittleshaw, I. W.; F. M. Hansen, O. W.; J. W. Snyder and W. D. Palmer, Trustees.

WHEAT UNSOLD.—Eighty thousand bushels of wheat, of last year's crop, still remain stored in the Farmers' warehouses at Tangent and Albany. Add this large residue to the crop of the present year, which promises to be large, and some estimate may be formed of the magnitude of the surplus of grain that will demand sale and shipment after the approaching harvest from Linn county alone.

TRIAL OF HORSES.—This afternoon, commencing at 1 o'clock, several teams which have been offered to the city for Vigilance Hook and Ladder Co. will be tried by the committee on fire and water of the common council, and Chief Engineer Jordan. The test of draught will be hauling the truck up the heavy grade on Third street from Clay to Mill.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE. ADDRESS BY DR. ATKINSON.—This morning at 10 o'clock the regular monthly institute of the teachers of the public schools will convene in the Central school, room 1. By special invitation Dr. Atkinson will address the teachers. The public are cordially invited.

NO RECOVERY.—Search was renewed yesterday morning for the body of Jas. McConnell, who fell overboard from the pontoon at the foot of Stark street, Thursday evening and was drowned. The search was continued during most of the day, but to no avail.

INVITED TO ATTEND.—The children of the Sunday school of the Church of Our Father, and others interested, are expected to attend service on Sunday and will be addressed by the pastor, concerning "an incident in the old Baptistery of Florence."

POSTPONED.—In consequence of the unsettled state of the weather, the picnic and excursion which was announced to come off to-day under the management of the Unitarian Sunday school, has been postponed until further notice.

FOR THE DALLES.—The little propeller Fleetwood is now making daily trips to the Cascades, at which point connection is made with the Gold Dust stove. The Fleetwood leaves every morning, Sundays excepted, at 6 o'clock.

THE EXCURSION.—The steamer Washington will leave the foot of Morrison street, for the White House to-morrow (Sunday), at 10 A. M., 12 M. and 3 P. M. Return trips, 11 A. M., 1 and 5 P. M. Round trip tickets, 50 cents.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—This evening the regular open temperance meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. hall. Rev. J. A. Cruzan will address the meeting. A violin and piano duet will be rendered by Mr. Bettman and Mrs. Bird.

NEW SCHEDULE.—Elsewhere will be found the schedule of sailing dates of the steamers Columbia, State of California and Oregon, from Portland and from San Francisco. The public will do well to consult these dates.

LARGE SHIPMENT.—Mr. Thomas Monteith, of the Albany flouring mills, will ship, through Rodgers, Meyer & Co., on one of their outgoing vessels, in a few days, 10,500 barrels of flour. The cargo is consigned to Liverpool.

NEW RESIDENCE.—Judge Brumaugh has moved his present residence to Lownsdale and Morrison, and will erect on the vacant spot a large and handsome residence, thus enhancing the appearance of the neighborhood.

EXCURSION TO VANCOUVER.—The new propeller Fleetwood will leave foot of Morrison street tomorrow at 12 A. M.; returning, leaves Vancouver at 5.30 P. M. Fare, (round trip) fifty cents.

POSTPONED.—The regatta of the Portland Rowing Association, which was to have taken place this afternoon, has been postponed one week, owing to necessary repairs to one of the boats.

GONE TO SEA.—The steamship Columbia which sailed hence yesterday morning for San Francisco, crossed the bar bound out yesterday evening at 6 o'clock.

WILL SAIL.—The steamer Oregon will sail from San Francisco for Portland this morning at 10 o'clock, with freight and passengers.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Tatum & Bowen, San Francisco and Portland, are sole agents of R. Hoe & Co.'s celebrated saws.

Cardwell & Bennett of the Palace boot and shoe house, corner of Third and Morrison streets, have just opened 50 cases of mens', womens' and childrens' boots and shoes, all of the finest eastern manufacture. These will be offered at the lowest price. Give these young gentlemen a call.

Lewis & Straus, the well known dry goods dealers, make a special announcement this morning which should be read by all purchasers of dry goods. They intend to remodel their store this summer and want to have as little goods as possible to take care of. For the coming six weeks, therefore, they offer everything in their splendid stock which was selected for Portland's best trade, at clearance prices. The firm's reputation for good faith with the public in past years, warrants the statement that the promises made will be kept.

AUCTION SALES.

At [illegible] to-day A. B. Richardson will hold a regular sale at Nathan's salesroom. A lot of articles will be sold.

The final and closing auction sale of the balance of Simon Harris' stock of pictures, stereoscopes, albums, frames will be held this (Saturday) evening. Sale will commence at 8 o'clock. Do not fail to attend this sale.

FOR RENT.—The store now occupied by Mooney & Valentine, 193 First street. Possession July 1st. Rent low. Apply at store.

Though it may be too late this week to expect to arrange for a new suit to order and get it for Sunday, yet it is not too late to leave your measure. You can get something in that line which will certainly please yourself, wife and family at Shipper & Rybke's, Oak street, east of First.

You don't need to mortgage your home to buy a new hat now. Woods, the Hatter, is the man to go to.

The auction of elegant Picture Frames and Albums at Simon Harris' will be concluded to-night.

Anyone desiring to sell their household furniture may find a purchaser by addressing Box 100, Portland.

The best place to get your Hats is of Woods, the Hatter.

[illegible], 5 P. M., German bakery, [illegible] Washington street.

ACQUITTED.

The Jury in the Dolg Case Return a Verdict of Not Guilty—The Defendant Discharged.

Pursuant to adjournment, the U. S. circuit court met yesterday morning at 9:30. After calling the jurors, Judge Deady proceeded to deliver his charge in the case of U. S. vs Thomas Dolg, indicted for manslaughter. At a quarter to eleven the judge concluded the charge and the case was submitted. Three hours were consumed by the jury in deliberation before a verdict was reached. At 2 o'clock the jury came in with a verdict. The verdict was as follows:

"We the jurors find the defendant not guilty as charged in the indictment."

Signed, J. T. LADY, foreman.

Judge Deady in concluding his charge to the jury said:

The jury in addition to the general verdict of not guilty or guilty, will find and answer the following questions:

First—Whether the defendant was or was not guilty of misconduct, negligence or inattention to his duties as pilot of the steamship Great Republic in taking said vessel over the bar of the Columbia river under circumstances shown by the evidence.

To this question the jury answered, "No."

Second—Whether the defendant was or was not so guilty in navigating said vessel near Sand island so that she was grounded upon said island under the circumstances shown by the evidence?

To this question the jury answered, "Yes."

By order of court the defendant, Thomas Dolg, was discharged from custody after the verdict of the jury was announced.

RAILROAD TO THE DALLES.

A Visit to the Scene of Busy Operations.

DESCRIPTION OF SOME OF THE HEAVY ROCK WORK.

A Rock as Large as Mechanics' Pavilion to be Torn Away at One Blast—The Tunnels—Two Sliding Mountains—Cost of the Road.

To a casual reader, the announcement "a railway is in course of construction from Portland to The Dalles," seems very like the statement that the west side road is building an extension from McMinnville to Corvallis. It's a railroad to the Dalles and will require a certain amount of grading, trestle and bridges; will be [illegible], and [illegible] already [illegible] in commercial point of view, [illegible] which [illegible] by steamer [illegible] express, [illegible] that the work will be done [illegible]. To a person who has made the trip between the two points [illegible] the Cascades, that great empire lying east of the Cascades, and who has closely observed the north bank of the Columbia, the thought will occur that [illegible] grading stand in the way of [illegible] experienced civil engineer whose [illegible] of all natural obstacles [illegible] varying shape, looking [illegible] half a mile, [illegible] and a half distant, the vastness of the undertaking would be apparent. Not even a survey to [illegible] located, a year ago, the points to be followed were the [illegible] by the railroad [illegible]. More than that the very competent men now [illegible] the work did not comprehend the exact nature of their task, simply because no railway [illegible] in the United States [illegible] lies at the base of these rocky mountains which rise directly along the majestic Columbia. [illegible] is a battle against nature, but human skill and perseverance united with [illegible] triumph. The colossal undertaking will be [illegible] and that too within a year.

NOTES OF PASSING [illegible] WORK.

In company with Mr. R. [illegible], chief engineer, and Mr. John [illegible] Halloran, superintendent of construction, a representative of THE OREGONIAN recently visited the more interesting portions of the work between the Cascades and the Dalles, the conveyance being the steamer Idaho [illegible]. Wagon road is the only thing bordering the railroad, that parallels along the line, on any considerable distance of it; can not be made on foot or horseback. About four miles below the Dalles is the first heavy work in operation, a bluff of Emily, basaltic rock, rising abruptly from the river almost perpendicularly, to the height of 300 feet—twice as high as the steeple of Odd Fellows' hall or Trinity church spire—and 100 feet long—as far as from Lewis & Tilton's bank to New Market theater. From this bluff a section varying from 15 feet at the top to 35 feet at the base is being blasted out. Ascent of the cliff is commenced half a mile below at the river bank where an easy landing is effected, then by a long [illegible] stairway built by the company, then over a rough, circuitous path to the edge of the precipice. It was easy enough to make the first blast because drilling was done from the top. Then the [illegible] leaves no foothold for workmen. They had to be let down with ropes and suspended until they could drill and blast a ledge on which to stand. After every fresh blast came the same difficulty in obtaining a foothold and this still continues. Two men with ropes around their bodies being let down a perpendicular wall a hundred and fifty feet, with a [illegible] distance between them and the river, and they at work with drill and hammer is a sight at once novel and startling. One can't forget the thought of danger, and of certain death should a rope break. The rock referred to is only one of a score or more being shot away between Rooster rock and the Dalles, all of them this same hard, solid rock, from fifty to two hundred feet high. Eight miles below the Dalles, a bluff 95 feet high, 270 feet long, and from 15 to 35 feet thick, was taken out with such precision that what remains is as upright a wall as regular as though laid with square and plumb line. When the main blast was fired the scow containing tunnel machinery lay a quarter of a mile below in a well sheltered cove, so great was the concussion in which the water at the scow was raised seven feet by a wave, and as the swell receded, every rope by which the scow was moored snapped like a thread. Whenever an obstruction is to be torn away, a small tunnel large enough for a man to work in and just as wide, is made at the base of the rock, and other tunnels drilled at right angles with the first. In these, black, or Judson powder is placed and ignited with a fuse. The explosion shatters the solid mass into pieces from the size of an egg to a barrel. The broken stuff, of course, is removed by hand. The largest blast on the line is now in preparation and will be sent off next week. It is a rock point ten miles above the Cascades, 185 feet high, 170 feet wide and 50 feet thick at the base, and contains more than 10,000 cubic yards. Imagine Mechanics' pavilion, or the [illegible] block standing on end and you have about the size of this rock. [illegible] pounds of Judson powder, equal to 20,000 pounds of black will be used. It will be ignited by electricity from a battery half a mile away, and in just about three seconds after the circuit has been broken, most of the enormous mass will be in the Columbia river.

This is the class of work all along the line in nearly every mile. However, stone is little resistance to powder, and gradually but surely a grade is being established. And yet to look at the bank from a steamer in her regular course near the opposite shore the work accomplished is almost imperceptible. With nothing except gigantic mountains in the background by which to draw comparisons, it seems insignificant as a skiff to the steamship or a [illegible] point to the Pacific ocean, a star to the sun. In that grand picture, the embankments and levels and cuts are no more than trifling indentations, and specks and scratches.

THE TUNNELS.

After the preliminary survey had been finished last year, the Oregon Railway and Navigation company found themselves confronted with five tunnels, two between Portland and the Cascades, and three between the Cascades and the Dalles. Permanent locations made this spring found a way to avoid two of the five bugbears to all railroad builders who want to hurry a road. Progress with tunnels thus far has been satisfactory and quite as fair as expected. "No. One," 350 feet long, is about one mile below the Dalles and is two thirds done. Like the others, it is 19½ feet high, 14 feet wide at the base and 16 feet at the spring of the arch. Drilling is done entirely by steam generated on a scow moored in the river fifty feet below and conducted through heavy hose. The supply of steam is regulated by the workman with a valve which is part of the drill machinery. During the day in bright weather no artificial light beyond a few candles is needed. At night two large locomotive headlights are used, one pointing toward, the other out. Holes are drilled vertically, horizontally, or at any angle required, and the blasting is done with giant powder. Work goes on day and night, the men having eight hour shifts. The exhaust steam which can escape only at the mouth of the tunnel renders the place of work entirely too warm for comfort. Barring accident, the tunnel will be completed within 18 days.

"No. Two" is three miles below, is a little shorter than No. One, and a trifle nearer completion. Its construction is under charge of [illegible] of San Francisco. The motive power for the drills is compressed air, which is forced into a tank by the two steam engines built for that purpose. All the machinery is located on a scow three hundred feet from the tunnel, and the compressed air is conducted through hose to the drills. The use of compressed air does away with the annoying exhaust of steam, and the temperature is never hot. A Brush electric machine is also located on the scow and supplies two lamps, one at the tunnel's mouth the other near the drillers, giving an intensely brilliant light.

No. Three is situated four miles below Rooster Rock and will be 550 feet long. A contract for its construction was let this week to Jas. Muir, who will begin operations Monday, working simultaneously at both ends. Early in the season it was thought the tunnels would retard completion of the road. Experience so far indicates that "No. Three" will be finished in advance of the remainder of the work.

TWO TROUBLESOME SECTIONS.

Building a grade is not everything. It has to be held, and there are two places that will give the company much trouble for some time after the road shall have been completed. One of the mountains near the lower cascades is sliding into the river at the rate of about twelve inches per year. Here's a sample of its last notable performances. A year ago when the original survey was made there was a cut of five feet through solid rock at this point. When work was commenced eight weeks ago, the rock was found to have sunk four and a half feet, and to have been crushed into lumps smaller than a man's fist. A portion of the grade built by the O. S. N. Co. a few years ago has sunk out of sight. Several theories are advanced as to the cause of sliding, the favorite one being that the mountain rests on shelving bed rock and as the strong current of the mighty river washes away its base the top slips down and the superincumbent weight of earth and rock three or four thousand feet high crushes the solid rock beneath. Whatever may be the cause the fact remains that the mountain does slide. Superintendent Halloran in speaking of the matter remarked, "I couldn't tell it to a man unless he was here on the ground and saw it. No one would believe the story. Such a thing was never heard of before."

At Shell rock, twelve miles above the Cascades, where the railroad crosses the Dalles wagon road, it seems next to impossible to build a grade that will hold without destroying the wagon road. Shell rock is a mountain about 2000 feet high, covered with small broken stone nearly to the summit, and has a very steep, regular slope. When any stone is removed from below, that above comes down, and keeps on coming. Where the wagon road makes an ascent, the railroad keeps to grade, and of course is lower. In making the latter's embankment, the mountain's covering is disturbed, slides, and takes away the wagon road. This has happened six times. Now the company is building a long wall of heavy stone, 10 feet high, to check the slide, and they may be able to succeed. In one place where the rocks come down with unusual influence a wall has been started 150 feet up the mountain. At two feet below the surface of the mountain and probably not how much deeper, all space between the small square stones is filled with [illegible]. This crushed rock is just the size required for macadamizing, and any enterprising street contractor [illegible] to improve every street in P[illegible] and [illegible] be laid out for [illegible] and [illegible] him a cent, provided he [illegible] it away.

[illegible] OF THE RAILWAY.

The road will run almost east from Portland and touch the Columbia opposite [illegible], about five miles below Rooster Rock, and continue along the bank for the entire distance to The Dalles. The mountain scenery on the northern side [illegible] a better view [illegible] in the river, the [illegible] much admired [illegible] be a mile nearer to [illegible] and [illegible] will be viewed by [illegible] the [illegible] of Cape Horn. In return [illegible] they [illegible] within [illegible] of the highest [illegible] the [illegible] opposite [illegible] far [illegible] from the Columbia.

The [illegible] to [illegible] 25 feet [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] curves [illegible] high water [illegible] of 1876, and on an embankment still higher [illegible] grade will be [illegible] with gravel and iron will not [illegible], so that the entire [illegible] Dalles will [illegible] running there. The track will be ballasted the entire distance with gravel.

Eighty-six miles is the distance from Portland to The Dalles by rail, and the road is estimated to cost $3,000,000, nearly $35,000 per mile. Just when it will be finished, depends on the amount of human muscle that can be secured. Three hundred white men and twelve hundred Chinese are now employed. The management still need and can profitably employ 1000 more men, whatever their nationality or color. If that additional number will go to work for three months, the railroad will be in operation by December 1.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1881.

THE CZAR—TWO PICTURES OF HIM.

MR. EDITOR: The late Russian Czar should have all the credit he deserves, and with this opinion I send you the following:

The Pall Mall Gazette, one of the very ablest and most candid of the liberal journals of England, speaks of the late czar as "the greatest and in many respects the noblest sovereign in Europe," and adds that "since Henry of Navarre fell by the dagger of Ravaillac, no European sovereign has deserved as well of his subjects and was requited so ill."

If that is correct, the European kings must be miserable specimens of rulers, for the late czar was a merciless tyrant, and for the honor of humanity I hope there are no more rulers who are as brutal as he was. By way of comment on the above, read the following account of one of ten thousand cases of merciless punishment inflicted by the czar's order, not only in Siberia, but even in Russia itself. Despotism is as bad in Russia as it is anywhere else. Read:

THE JUSTICE OF THE LATE CZAR.

The Abbe Sierocinski, formerly superior of the late convent of Basilians, at Overcus, took part in the last Polish revolution. He was sent by the Czar Nicholas to labor in the mines of Siberia, where he plotted, with several others, to effect their escape. For this he was condemned by the late emperor to receive seven thousand lashes. The carrying out of the sentence was most horrible. In March, 1867, two battalions were drawn up in the great square of Omsk, under the orders of Gen. Galafejew, the cruel servant of a cruel master. Sierocinski and his companions were brought out, and the judgment was read aloud with the words "without mercy," which it contained, being especially emphasized. The culprits were stripped to the waist, and their hands were tied behind to a bayonet. Each one, by turns, walked along the whole battalion, every soldier administering to him a blow with a rod with his full strength. A thousand blows fell, and then each miserable, torn, bleeding victim was sent back to receive another thousand.

On the third journey they all fell dead. Sierocinski had been kept until the last, that he might behold the tortures suffered by his friends. A military surgeon tendered him a small vial containing some drops of cordial, which he refused, crying, "I want not your drops. Take my blood and drink it!" He started on his fearful journey singing, "God be merciful!" and his wild accents were gradually lost in the thud of the sticks striking his bare flesh, and in the loud words of command of the general shouting, "Strike harder, strike harder!" When Sierocinski received the first thousand blows, he fell fainting, his blood dropping on the snow. He was placed upright on a sledge, and tied so as to expose his back to the full weight of the descending rods. The unhappy man continued to groan until he was dragged four times before the battalion. He then became silent; and the last three thousand blows fell on a corpse.

We have searched the records to try to find the letter or telegram of condolence sent by the government of the United States to the family of the Abbe Sierocinski, but cannot find it.—House and Home.

ARCHAISMS IN THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT.

Professor Fisher, of Yale, contributes a scholarly and thorough review of "The Revised New Testament" to the June Scribner, enumerating all the important changes and on the whole commending the conscientious and careful work of the revisers, although he takes exception in some few minor instances. After giving several examples of the changes made by the committee, he writes as follows:

"The authors of the New Revision, had they undertaken to exclude all archaisms, would have been obliged to go farther in modifying the tone of the received version than was necessary or desirable. They have wisely decided to retain such as are perfectly intelligible and and cannot be dropped without dispelling in some degree the atmosphere that invests the ancient translation. There is no objection to saying that Joseph 'minded to put her away privily' (Matt. i. 19). Everyone sees the meaning of 'minded' at a glance, without reflection. In some instances, however, archaic forms have been retained, which are less agreeable, and which might have been spared without the least harm. Why was it necessary to retain the word 'bewrayeth'—'Thy speech bewrayeth thee' (Matt. xxvi. 73)? The difference between this word and 'betrayeth,' if there be any difference, readers will not discern. In the Lord's Prayer, why do we still read, 'which art in heaven,' for 'who art in heaven?' It appears that the retention of 'which' is due to the English branch of the board of revisers. It is a remarkable fact that the English company, with the uprightness which belongs to the character of true scholars, and with a genuine English boldness in a matter where truth is at stake, do not hesitate to alter the form of the Lord's Prayer by substituting 'as we have forgiven' for 'as we forgive,' and 'deliver us from the evil one,' in the room of 'deliver us from evil.'—it is remarkable, we say, that the same scholars should cling to the old 'which' for the modern and more grammatical 'who.' Fearless in revising the Greek text to make it accord with the demands of truth, they are excessively cautious about modifying the English phrases which represent it. Owing to the same mood of feeling they hold on to 'whiles'—'whiles thou art in the way with him'—(Matt. v. 25) as if 'while' in the room of it were not harmless, and a better word for the modern ear. If it be asked why 'which' is kept in the Lord's prayer and 'whiles' in the Sermon on the Mount, the solution must be found in that tenacious conservatism in minor things which belongs, in unison with a courageous spirit of progress, to the English mind, and is discerned in many phenomena of English life. Why do the boys in the great school at Winchester still eat their supper off wooden plates? Why do the lawyers and judges still load their heads with ponderous wigs? When such questions are answered, the reason will perhaps be found why the giving up dear old 'which' and 'whiles' is a thing not to be thought of."

French Tragedy.

[Richard Grant White in June Atlantic.]

The easy flow of French conversation which makes seeing French comedy like having our going into society done for us (as the Turk would have his dancing)—when it ceases to flow and sparkle irregularly, and swells into the solemn waves of Alexandrian verses, each like the other, rising six syllables, pausing an instant, and falling six into the trough of rhyme, becomes as dreary as a stage prospect of an artificial ocean; and we think, if this is poetry, how delightful must have been the lifelong speech of Monsieur Jourdain! And yet of such eternal talk in verse all French tragedies are made up.

I am able to say that this appreciation of French tragedy was that of Rachel herself. I knew her and talked with her about her art; and one evening when there was no one else by to listen she spoke without reserve of the dullness of French tragedy, and its lack of character. She condemned it wholly, and expressed her great regret that she did not know Shakespeare until it was too late for her to study his plays, even to act them in translation, for she could not speak English. She spoke with enthusiastic admiration of Shakespeare, and almost with contempt of Corneille and Racine. And although she knew me as the author of Shakespeare's Scholar, which had just then been published, she was somewhat older than I was, and, being a woman, she was really much older. Moreover, she was the great tragedian of the age, and I but a young dilettante author; and therefore there is no reason to believe that this comparison and confession were in compliment to a man of English blood and speech and a student of Shakspeare. I saw that she meant and felt all that she said. Others, indeed, shared with us this appreciation of the French drama; but I have never seen the reasons for it particularly set forth; and the light which her genius cast upon its dull formalities was by some who should have been sharper-eyed mistaken for its own.

Life in Other Worlds.

[From the London Telegraph.]

Two interesting problems which have long perplexed the scientific world appear to have been at last definitively solved by the eminent geologist, Dr. Hahn. These questions are, first, whether or not celestial bodies, other than the earth, belonging to our solar system, are inhabited by animate beings, and, secondly, whether the meteoric stones from time to time cast upon the surface of this globe emanate from incandescent comets or from volcanic planets. That they at no time formed a part of the earth itself has been conclusively demonstrated. Dr. Hahn has recently completed a series of investigations upon some of the huge meteoric stones that fell from the skies in Hungary during the summer of 1866. Thin laminæ of these mysterious bodies, subjected to the examination under a powerful microscope, have been found to contain coralline and spongeous formations, and to reveal unmistakable traces of the lower form of vegetation. All the organisms, animal and vegetable, discovered by Dr. Hahn in the delicate stone shavings he has thus dealt with indicate the condition of their parent world to be one of what is technically termed "primary formation." But the presence of water in that world is proved by the fact that the tiny petrified creatures revealed by the magic of the lens, one and all, belong to the so-called subaqueous classes of animals. They could not, therefore, have possibly existed in comets, at least if the assumption be correct that these are in a state of active combustion.

MISERABLENESS.

The most wonderful and marvelous success in cases where persons are sick or pining away from a condition of miserableness that no one knows what ails them, (profitable patients for doctors), is obtained by the use of Hop Bitters. They begin to cure from the first dose and keep it up until perfect health and strength is restored. Whoever is afflicted in this way need not suffer, when they can get Hop Bitters. See "Truths" and "Proverbs" in another column.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The freight market has been quiet to-day owing to a cold easterly storm and ships have done very little. Rates continue firm at the late advance and it is possible that there may be a further advance in case of continued scarcity of tonnage, and which is highly probable, as there are very few ships coming this way. Overland freights have also been less active than for some time, yet shipments are quite large, including 300 cases milk, 200 do canned goods, 400 pkgs soap and starch, 300 cases baking powder, 50 cases clams, 85 cases cocoanut, 934 pkgs tobacco, 45 cases citron, 10 cases prunes, 10 bags coffee, 25 cases salad dressing, and 25 cases cider.

Steamer freights via the Isthmus are dull, but for the steamer Rio Janeiro via Cape Horn there is some inquiry, and she will no doubt have a full cargo.

Markets are quiet and prices in many instances are firm.

Wheat ½@¾c higher on bad weather reports, shippers not doing much except in spring wheat.

Pork—Dull; easier.

Lard—5@7½c off.

Rio Coffee—Offered moderately, prices firm, ½c higher.

Refined Sugars—Active, higher.

Hides—Unchanged.

Turpentine—Quiet, steady.

Petroleum—Firm.

The Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, June 3.—The demand for wool has been quite active, and better feeling prevails. Sales for the week, 2,400,000 lbs, of all grades and qualities. Good average lots of Ohio and Pennsylvania X and XXX selling at 42@43½c. Sales under these figures do not come up to the standard. Very little wool is now to be had at 42@42½. Michigan and Wisconsin deckes sold at 37½@39½c. Desirable lots are difficult to find at the latter price. In combing and delaine very little has been done and prices are nominal at 45@45c. Unwashed combings have been selling at 25@32, and firm at 30@35c for desirable lots Kentucky. California wool has been more inquired for; sales of 485,000 pounds from 18 to 25c for fall and spring. There has been quite a movement in new Texas wool with sales of 525,000 pounds from 24c to 32c, mostly 25@32c. Unwashed and unmerchantable fleeces in steady demand and continue dull at wide range of prices as to quality. Fine and medium & advancing at 27@31c, principally from 27@32, lot of 25,000 pounds. New Georgia wool sold at 32½c, fair demand. Pulled wool has been active with considerable sales, ranging to 45c for super ordinary lots; lower. Montevideo and Australian also quite firm, former cannot be bought at low prices previously current. Carpet wools nothing of any consequence being done, but stocks held firm.

THE ENGLISH GRAIN MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 3.—A leading grain circular says: The grain trade is extremely dull. Most of the spot markets are lower. Foreign scarcely maintains its price. For cargo and all positions there is little inquiry, and sellers are giving way. On spot and in the neighborhood since Tuesday trade has been merely of a retail character, and rates unchanged. At to-day's market there was a scanty of the average attendance. Wheat was in limited demand and rates were barely sustained. Flour was slow of sale at unchanged rates.

Gold and Stock Reports.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.

Receipts—Wheat, 9000 ctls; flour, 1500 qr sks; potatoes, 1400 sks; eggs, 24,000 doz.

Wheat—The market is very quiet to-day, business very light. Buyers are holding off. New Sonora, Hill's Ferry was offered in the market to-day. The quality is excellent. Among sales to-day 175 tons fair shipping $1 83¾. Small lot choice milling sold at $1 85. Quote choice shipping $1 40@1 42½.

Oats—Market is quiet but firm. Among sales yesterday were 1400 sks light bright Oregon at $1 70@1 82½. We quote same as before.

Bags—Hand sewed—The market shows no feature of striking interest.

Salmon—The market is firm, business very quiet. No sales reported. Quote as before.

Butter—Market is strong at 20@25c. Supplies are larger from the east. Quote eastern 17@18c.

Eggs—Market cannot be said to show the least sign of improvement. The demand is not stimulated by the decline. Quote the same as before.

Hams—Eastern and sugar cured, supplies are lighter and market is firm at full prices. Quote 14½@15¾c.

Bacon—Market is well supplied, very little demand, prices unchanged.

Lard—Market is steady at full prices. Eastern cases 15½@16c.
